阅读下面短文, 从短文后所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中选出可以填入空白处的最佳选项。

Every day on the way to work I drive down a street lined with pine trees. One tree in particular _____ 21 _____ my attention. It must have suffered some _____ 22 _____. Part of its trunk grew nearly parallel to the ground, and then in an effort to _____ 23 _____ its course of life, the trunk took a 90 degree turn _____ 24 _____ to stand tall and stretch toward the sun.

This tree became a _____ 25 _____ for me. Each day as I drove by, I saw this bent but determined tree and I would be _____ 26 _____. It was a reminder to me that _____ 27 _____ I may not have had the best start in life, I could change _____ 28 _____ in the parts of my life at any time.

I was planning to stop one day to get a perfect _____ 29 _____ of my kindred-spirit (志趣相同的) tree. But that week I was _____ 30 _____. After that busy week, I still didn't take any action. Every time I drove by the tree I would _____ 31 _____ myself, "Tomorrow, I'll stop tomorrow to take one." Then one day, as I _____ 32 _____ by "my" tree, I glanced over and, much to my _____ 33 _____, found a sawed-off stump (树桩) where that symbolic tree had stood. Gone. I had _____ 34 _____ my plan until "tomorrow" and tomorrow proved to be too _____ 35 _____.

A picture of a tree is not of great _____ 36 _____. But my lesson rang through clearly _____ 37 _____. I found out one of my colleagues had been _____ 38 _____ with stage-four cancer. He may no longer have many _____ 39 _____.

What have you been putting off? What would you do today if you knew you would _____ 40 _____ have the opportunity to do it again? Why not do those things that you have been putting off until tomorrow?

第二部分 阅读理解(共 25 小题; 每小题 2 分, 满分 50 分)

阅读下列短文, 从每题所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中选出最佳选项。

A

Picture a library without books? Well, I can't. Ever since I was little I would go to the library and take out numerous books. From picture books to beginning chapter books to YA books, books have always been a part of my life. Unlike many people today, I don't own a Kindle or a Nook or any type of e-reader. I prefer the old-fashioned book. There is something about holding a book and being able to turn the pages that I find comforting. In today's 21st century, books may become obsolete. For me that's something I find scary.

I am a fan of the old TV science-fiction series Twilight Zone. One episode(一段情节)is about a librarian who has become obsolete. Though this episode aired in 1961, the writer of the series, Rod Serling was exactly on point when it came to predicting the future.

In fact, in San Antonio, Texas the first-ever bookless library in the country opened. The library is full of iMacs, tablets and iPads which cost a huge $2.3 million. The library offers around 10,000 e-books. So the question is, is this what the future will soon be? Mary Graham, vice president of South Carolina's Charleston Metro Chamber of Commerce states, "This is the future...If you're going to be building new library facilities, this is what you need to be doing."

It is our generation that will be the guinea pigs(试验品) of increasing technology like this. Is this a good or bad thing? Well, digital libraries may help the environment by not using paper; however, I feel like something will always be lacking with a digital book. A digital library is just the beginning.

With all of this new technology, people seem to be more absorbed in their own world. One of my biggest complaints is when I am with my friends and they can't seem to get off their smart phone and talk to me. To make plans with a friend and then have them stuck on their phone the whole time is extremely rude. Not only is it disrespectful, but it reflects the direction of where human interactions are heading. Though social media is great, it also is addicting and has negative effects.

Often when I go on Facebook it just makes me feel worse about myself. I'll see many of my 800 Facebook friends showing off their newest accomplishment or acceptance to college. Additionally, our society is becoming increasingly lazy. For instance, instead of doing mental math, people use their phone to solve  $89 + 74$ . It is simple tasks like these that are allowing people to lack important educational and social skills.

It is up to us to find a balance between technology and human values and interactions. With new technology being created every day, we need to learn how to use it alongside our great minds. After all, inventions are supposed to benefit society not harm it. In the day of technology, who knows what's next?

41. The underlined word "obsolete" (Paragraph 1) is closest in meaning to _____.
A. outdated      B. complex      C. expensive      D. meaningless
42. What can we infer from the underlined sentence in Paragraph 2?
A. The episode still enjoys great popularity nowadays.
B. Rod Serling liked making predictions about the future.
C. The situation of books today is similar to what Rod Serling predicted in the episode.
D. The episode airing in 1961 was the most entertaining of the TV science-fiction series.
43. What can we learn about the library in San Antonio, Texas?
A. It is the first-ever library in America.
B. It is of no practical use although it costs so much.
C. It holds an exhibition of much electronic equipment.
D. People can read e-books there with the help of the new facilities.
44. According to the passage, which of the following statements is wrong?
A. The author likes libraries with numerous books.
B. The author doesn't think it a good thing to have a library with only digital books.
C. The author doesn't like new technology as some inventions do harm to society.
D. Digital libraries are environment-friendly in a sense.
45. Which of the following will the writer probably disagree with?
A. Great as social media is, it does have some negative effects.
B. With the increasing use of social media, something will actually be lost.
C. Through social media, people can develop educational and social skills.
D. As a result of social media, people may communicate less with the people around.

Shower Radio—Warranty(保单)and Directions

Introduction

Congratulations! You are now the owner of a So Fine Shower Radio! It is sure to provide entertainment for many hours. In addition, the radio features a timer(计时器)for those days when you are in a hurry.

Before using the radio, please read all directions, fill out and mail in the warranty card, and put warranty information in a safe place. Although we do not expect problems with the radio, you may need to refer to the warranty information at a later time.

Warranty

This radio is warranted for a one-year period that begins on the date of purchase. If it fails to work because of a problem of materials, please return it to the following address; So Fine Radio Corp., 1279 Delta Way, Monga, CA97623.

We will not pay shipping costs for returning the radio to us. We will either repair or replace the radio. Please allow at least four weeks for looking at the problem and repairing the radio. If you have not heard from us within six weeks, call our customer service department at 1-800-123-4567.

Radios that are returned to us for problems other than a problem of materials will be affected by service fee as well as the cost of the repairs. Customers will be informed of the charge by postcard. Radios will not be returned to customers until these fees are paid.

Directions

Please read all directions before using it.

Please note that this radio is designed and built to operate well in a damp environment. The self-contained batteries and circuits are contained in the enclosed space that will bear heat and dampness.

To Operate the Radio

1. Put two AA batteries in the enclosed space at the back of the radio. Be certain to follow the diagram, or the batteries will not provide electricity. The radio should NOT be adapted(改装) in order to be fixed into the wall; this will damage the waterproofing(防水).
2. Turn the POWER dial in a clockwise direction until it clicks. Continue turning the dial until the desired volume is achieved.
3. To find the desired station, press the station selector button. The tuner(调谐器) will automatically go to the next highest signal. The station's call number will be visible in the digital screen. When the station with the highest frequency has been reached, the selector will start again at the lowest frequency.
4. To switch between AM and FM stations, move the sliding AM/FM switch.

To Operate the Timer

1. Press the Timer Set button. Each time the button is pressed, five minutes will be put on the timer. The amount of time on the timer will be visible for five seconds on the digital screen.
2. When the time on the timer doesn't work, a beep will sound for ten seconds. The timer may be reset again after one minute.

Troubleshooting(发现并修理故障)

Before returning the radio for service, please check the following items:

Problem: Radio cannot be heard.

1. Check batteries to be certain that they still have power and are put in correctly.
2. Check power/volume control.

Problem: Timer does not work.

1. Check batteries to be certain that they still have power and are put in correctly.
2. Follow directions above for setting
3. Turn the power control on. The timer will not work when the radio is not on.
4. Adjust the volume control which regulates the volume of the beep as well as the radio volume.

46. The digital screen will show both _____.
  - A. the call number and time on the timer
  - B. the AM/FM indicator and the radio station
  - C. the time remaining on the timer and the date

  - B. Call the producer for a repair number.
  - C. Consult the telephone book for local repair service.
  - D. Check whether certain problems exist.

C

Americans have always been firm believers of what William James called “the bitch goddess success”. Self-help guidance books have topped the bestseller lists since Benjamin Franklin published his autobiography. Americans are much more likely than Europeans to believe that people can get ahead in life so long as they are willing to work hard. And they are much more likely to choose a high-paying job that carries a risk of redundancy(裁员) than a lower-paid job that guarantees security.

But you can't have winners without losers (or how would you know how well you are doing?). And you can't broaden opportunity without also broadening the opportunity to fail. For example, blacks could not blame themselves for their failure in the “race of life”, in Abraham Lincoln's phrase, because at that time they were prevented from so many parts of it. But now although the barriers are lifted, the picture of the blacks' life is more complex.

All of which creates a huge problem: how exactly should a highly-competitive society deal with its losers? It's all very well to note that drunkards and lazybones get what they deserve. But what about the honest toilers? One way to deal with the problem is to offer people as many second chances as possible. In his new book “Born Losers: A History of Failure in America”, Scott Sandage argues that in the mid-nineteenth century people held a different view of failure—from something that had described a bad business to something that defined a whole life.

Yet one of the outstanding things about America is how strongly it has refused to hold the idea that there is any such thing as a born loser. American schools don't divide their pupils into groups according to their ability much longer than the European schools: the whole point is to fit in rather than stand out. American higher education has many points of entry and reentry. And the American legal system has some of the most generous bankruptcy(破产) rules in the world. In Europe, a bankrupt is often still a ruined man; in America, he is a risk-taking one.

American history—not to mention American folk tales—is filled with examples of people who tried and tried again until they made a success of their lives. Lincoln was a bankrupt storekeeper. Henry Ford was a continuous failure. At 40, Thomas Watson, the architect of IBM, faced prison. America's past is also full of people who came back from disaster. A second way to deal with losers is to celebrate them. Perhaps in reaction to the nonstop development of business life, American popular culture often sympathizes with losers. But even in the loser-loving bits of popular culture, the American success is always achieved in spite of difficulties. More often than not, born losers turn out to be winners at last.

50. Why do Americans prefer a high-paying job according to the passage?

- A. Because they are fond of taking risks.
- B. Because they are devoted to working hard.
- C. Because they are eager to achieve success.
- D. Because they are interested in reading bestsellers.

51. The underlined words “honest toilers” (Para. 3) can best be described as people who are _____.

- A. hard-working      B. reliable      C. wealthy      D. determined

52. The fourth paragraph is written to _____.

- A. compare American education system with that of Europe
- B. introduce some generous rules of American legal system
- C. show that America is ready to give people second chances
- D. explain the reason why Americans refuse to be born losers

53. The writer may most probably agree with the idea that _____.

- A. America is a country not fit for black people
- B. born losers have already disappeared in modern American society

- C. there is always a dislike of people who are crazy about promoting business
D. American society has gradually changed the attitude towards failure over the years
54. Which of the following is mainly conveyed in the passage?
- A. Success comes first.
B. More winners, more losers.
C. History is full of changes and advances.
D. Failure is simply the opportunity to begin again.

I was 20 years old when my mother passed away. It was the first real blow that life had dealt me, and I thought I would never recover. Then, by the time the following spring came, the pain was almost bearable and again I could find pleasure in the miraculous reward of nature.

At first, I went to the cemetery with trepidation. But then, amazingly, by tending her grave and decorating it with flowers, I was ridding myself of the painful memories.

The years passed. I moved from Kaposvar, Hungary, the town where I had been born and had spent my youth. So did my siblings. We only came together on feast days, especially on All Souls' Day in the cemetery.

Father lived with me for many years, to a ripe old age. Now that he, too, rests beneath the white marble stone, I go even more eagerly to the cemetery. While I tend my parents' grave site, again I am with them in thought.

One day I noticed a modest grave site behind my parents' plot. It lay among the magnificent granite and marble markers of the other graves, its very simplicity calling attention to itself. Ivy(长春藤) had covered the site and its only decoration was a simple wooden cross on which was written in copper letters a name, and that she lived 22 years. Whenever I went by, the plot and its surroundings looked cared for and neat, and each time I felt curious about this mysterious woman who had lived all of 22 years.

Once I saw an elderly man leaving from there. I concluded that perhaps he had come to visit his wife. In 1996 I was preparing for All Souls' Day in the cemetery when again I caught sight of him, tending the grave. Tall, somewhat bent, he was well past middle age. We nodded to each other and continued our work. Occasionally I stole a glance at my neighbor. When I noticed that he hadn't got the tools for a proper cleanup, I offered him mine, which he gratefully accepted. After this, it seemed only natural to engage him in conversation. I asked him whose grave it was. This was his answer:

"My mother's. She died young, in 1912 when I was only a year-and-a half old. I really never knew her. I made her that cross and the copper letters."

Then he went on: "No one comes to visit this grave but me because I was her only child. She died of pneumonia. My father remarried and my stepmother only cared for her own children. So then I always came here to my mother, whether in sadness or in joy. Later, life took me far afield, but I never forgot this grave. For me it was the same as the family home is for others. I always came home here."

"With the years passing, it is getting more difficult for me to come, but as long as my legs will carry me, at least twice a year I visit my mother. I'm in my 80s. so who knows how long I can still make it."

In stunned silence I listened. Tears clouded my eyes as I realized that I had never seen such boundless love. How much easier is my lot, I thought, for at any moment I can reach into my storehouse of memories and draw out the joyful or sad vignettes(小插图) that bind me to my parents with a thousand threads. What memories might this kindly old gentleman harbor? Perhaps a face from an ancient faded photograph of his mother.

What a great attachment throughout his long life must have led him back again and again to the resting place of that young woman whose motherly love he could never truly savor(尝到), only forever feels its enormous lack.

We said good-bye. I was deeply moved because I knew that I had been given a great gift. I had been allowed a glimpse of the royal and long-lasting affection that bound a simple and noble-hearted man to his mother. I decided I would tend the grave together with that of my parents, where, finally, the aged child will have met his youthful mother.

55. All Souls' Day is a feast day _____.
A. to visit the cemetery and memorize the dead
B. for families to get together in the cemetery
C. to give gifts to family members
D. for daughters and sons to memorize their parents
56. From the passage, we know _____.
A. the author's mother died young and her father, too
B. the author's mother is dead while her father enjoys a long life
C. the man's mother died very young before he was born
D. the author's father lived long while the man's mother died very young
57. The underlined words "calling attention to itself" in the 5th paragraph means _____.
A. desiring to be paid attention to
B. making it easily noticed
C. too modest to be noticed
D. calling itself to draw others' attention
58. The author stole a glance at her neighbor because _____.
A. they were living in the same neighborhood
B. the man was tall and straight, well passed middle age
C. she was wondering about the dead young lady's story
D. she knew the dead in the grave was the man's mother
59. From Paragraph 10 we can conclude that _____.
A. the author lived near the cemetery and can visit her parents at any time
B. the poor gentleman had hardly any memory of his dear mother's love
C. the author is bound to her parents with threads
D. the gentleman comes back "home" whenever he wants to
60. What message is conveyed in the passage?
A. Love is a length of thread to bind mother and children together.
B. Mother needs love from her children even if she is dead.
C. Parents' love is always royal and long-lasting to children.
D. Mother's love can be a boundless gift to their children.

第二节 下面文章中有 5 处需要添加小标题。请从以下选项 (A、B、C、D、E 和 F) 中选出符合各段意思的小标题。选项中有一项是多余选项。

- A. Visit a class in your major
B. Talk to lots of students
C. Explore on your own
D. Turn to campus tour guides
E. Read the bulletin board
F. Eat in the dining hall

Tips for a Successful College Visit

College visits are important. Before you commit years of your life and thousands of dollars to a school, be sure you're choosing a place that is a good match for your personality and interests. You can't get the "feel" of a school from any guidebook, so be sure to visit the campus. Below are a few tips for getting the most out of your college visit.

61. _____

Of course you should take the official campus tour, but be sure to allow time to poke around on your own. The trained tour guides will show you a school's selling points. But the oldest and prettiest buildings don't give you the entire picture of a college, nor is the one dorm room that has been cleaned to perfection for visitors. Try to walk the extra mile and get the complete picture of the campus.

62. _____

When you visit the student center, academic buildings and residence halls, take a few minutes to read the bulletin boards. They provide a quick and easy way to see what's happening on campus. The ads for lectures, clubs, recitals and plays can give you a good sense of the types of activities going on outside of the classrooms.

63. _____

You can get a good feel for student life by eating in the dining hall. Try to sit with students if you can, but even if you're with your parents, you can observe the bustling activity around you. Do the students seem happy? stressed? Also, is the food good? Are there adequate healthy options? Many admissions offices will give prospective students coupons for free meals in the dining halls.

64. _____

If you know what you want to study, a class visit makes a lot of sense. You'll get to observe other students in your field and see how engaged they are in classroom discussion. Try to stay after class for a few minutes and chat with the students to get their impressions of their professors and major. Be sure to call in advance to schedule a classroom visit -- most colleges don't allow visitors to drop in on class unannounced.

65. _____

Your campus tour guide has been trained to market the school. Try to hunt down students who aren't getting paid to woo you. These impromptu conversations can often provide you with information about college life that isn't part of the admissions script. Few university officials will tell you if their students spend all weekend drinking or studying, but a group of random students might.

on

Yesterday a schoolboy is daydreaming in class. With realizing what he was doing, he put a pen cap into his mouth. A few minutes late, he was terrified to find that he had swallowed it! The teacher was shocking when the boy stood up and said, "I have just swallowed a pen cap." He was quickly sent the nearest hospital. There a doctor examined him and said the best treatment was to take some medicines so that the pen cap could pass natural. Three hours later, the boy successfully made it. "She is really lucky." said the doctor. "It's not rare that small children put things into their mouths for a fun. It is very danger."
